I. Introduction

SNHR documented the breaches that were perpetrated by the conflict parties in April, May, and June of the year 2012 after Kofi Annan's Six-points Plan was established by preparing and submitting copies of our daily reports to Kofi Annan office in Geneva until the plan was proven futile with the Syrian regime, mainly, perpetrating crimes beyond violating the plan including violations that amount to crimes against humanity and war crimes where we documented many of these crimes.

This was also the case with the Cessation of Hostilities statement that was signed on 27 February 2016 where we documented the breaches perpetrated by the signing parties by daily reports which were followed by periodic extensive reports. The Syrian regime and its ally the Russian regime have perpetrated the most and greatest of these breaches.

We hope that the second Cessation of Hostilities ceasefire – September 2016 can lay the basis for a political process aiming for a change towards democracy, and that it wouldn't be a failure such as the first ceasefire in February 2016.

The Cessation of Hostilities statement holds within the reasons for its meltdown which revolves around two fundamental limitations:

First: The Russian government is a sponsoring party to the Cessation of Hostilities statement with the American government. However, Russian forces are actively fighting and siding with Bashar Al Assad forces in Syria and have been involved in tens of crimes that constitute war crimes. If Russia was to play the role of a mediator, it should first withdraw its forces and abstain from directly siding with one of the conflict parties.

Second: In case the Russian forces breached the ceasefire, and these breaches were documented, what would be the accountability mechanism in this respect given that Russian forces are a party to the agreement and to the accountability as well? and what is the accountability mechanism for the Syrian regime, the Russian regime's partner in violating the ceasefire?

Fadel Abdul Ghani, chairman of SNHR, says:

“It is undeniable that the Cessation of Hostilities statement of February 2016 has prevented a lot of bloodshed and destruction in the following month March 2016. We indeed have noticed a significant decrease in death toll and destruction mainly because the aerial bombardment by the Russian and Syrian regimes warplanes, which are the main cause of the killing and destruction, have been ceased. We have affirmed repeatedly that by only banning aerial warfare in Syria, 70% of the death toll would be spared.”

Being experienced in the nature of the ruling and oppressive regime, the regime wants the ceasefire to be violated and wants Russian forces to eliminate all of its opposition because the regime will stop at nothing to realize its ultimate goal of exterminating and slaughtering all the areas and people who called for a change even if it took tens of years. The Syrian regime believes that any attempt to stop it even for a few days is an obstacle that will interject with its ultimate goal.

Our team, which has been monitoring violations for five years, recorded these incidents which is the bare minimum according to the standards and investigation methodology that we adhere to in documenting any incident which involves securing two sources for any incident where each of these two sources doesn't know of the other -For more, please see our methodology. Furthermore, we reviewed the videos and pictures we received and verified its authenticity through private programs, and we have talked to survivors, victims' families, or eyewitnesses to these incidents.

The report sheds light on every combat operation by the parties that are bound by the ceasefire (Government forces, Russian forces, Syria Democratic Kurdish Forces and armed opposition factions) in the areas controlled by armed opposition factions as well as the areas that are jointly controlled (armed opposition factions and Fateh Al Sham Front). The report doesn't include any combat operation in ISIS-held areas.

We recorded that humanitarian aids have been delivered to Talbisa city in the suburbs of Homs city. However, we didn't record any aids being delivered to the eastern suburbs of eastern Aleppo via the Castello Road even though it was a part of the Cessation of Hostilities statement. Also, the aids that were supposed to go to Mua'damiyet Al Sham town in Damascus suburbs were returned after some of the supplies were spoiled and got mixed in a way that made it unconsumable. Furthermore, the siege hasn't been lifted in any areas and not even one detainee was released.

Although a number of armed opposition factions have expressed their reservations on the Russian-American agreement and published statements clarifying the reasons behind their disapproval, we noticed a fairly good commitment to ceasing combat operations.

II. Executive Summary

IV. Recommendations

- We call on the joint American-Russian committee to investigate these incidents as soon as possible and to make the findings of these investigations public for the Syrian people. Also, the Committee should prevent a reoccurrence.
- In synchronization with the Cessation of Hostilities, the international community should work on initiating a political process towards a transitional phase that would result in a democratic regime which will put a real end to the suffering of the Syrian people.
- In case the breaches continued without a real deterrent, the truce, unfortunately, is prone to a breakdown at any moment. The United States of America, being a primary sponsor, should ask the Russian side to pressure on its ally the Syrian regime to cease the violations and breaches that it perpetrated and to start lifting the siege, immediately allow the passage of humanitarian aids, and release detainees.
